

The Arno and Ponte Vecchio make the strongest first impression near sunset, after the busiest crossing hours begin to ease. Photo: Daniel Lu, CC BY-SA 4.0

CARTA / A DECISION GUIDE

The Hotel Fit Guide

Seven questions to answer before you spend $1,000 a night on the wrong hotel.

A destination-aware edition for Florence.

A five-star rating tells you what a hotel has. It does not tell you whether the hotel fits the way you travel.

In Florence, a beautiful hotel can still be wrong if every evening begins in the wrong part of the city.

Gabe Rozavski
Travel advisor, Carta

Florence compresses the Duomo, Palazzo Vecchio, the Arno, and the surrounding hills into a remarkably walkable center. Photo: Peter Glyn, CC BY-SA 4.0

START WITH THE TRAVELER

01

Where do you want to be at 8 p.m.?

A hotel can be beautiful and still put you forty minutes from the part of the city you actually want after dinner. Start with the evening you want, then work backward to the neighborhood.

Ask yourself: Do you want to step into the action, or return to quiet?

02

What does the entry room actually feel like?

Hotel photography usually shows the suite, terrace, or one corner with the best light. The room category you will book may have a different size, outlook, and privacy.

Ask yourself: What is the exact room category, square footage, view, and bed layout?

03

Will you use the hotel, or only sleep there?

A resort with three pools and a spa can be worth the rate when the property is part of the trip. In a city, the same spend may be better used on location and room quality.

Ask yourself: How many waking hours will you realistically spend on property?

The Uffizi deserves a protected morning, not the leftover hour after several other major sights. Photo: Diego Delso, CC BY-SA 4.0

LOOK PAST THE STAR RATING

04

What kind of service makes you comfortable?

Some travelers want a doorman who knows their name and a concierge who checks in. Others want privacy, speed, and no ceremony. More service is not always better service.

Ask yourself: Do you want to be recognized, left alone, or able to choose between both?

05

Which benefits change the real price?

Breakfast, property credit, upgrade priority, early check-in, and late checkout can change the value of a booking. Compare the final stay, not only the room rate.

Ask yourself: Which benefits will you actually use, and are they confirmed?

06

What is the hotel's weak point?

Every hotel has one: noise, small rooms, slow elevators, a remote setting, or uneven renovation. The useful review tells you whether that weakness matters to you.

Ask yourself: What do recent guests repeatedly criticize, and would it affect your trip?

Boboli and Bardini give the dense museum city a necessary garden interval, especially in spring and early summer. Photo: Armin Kleiner, CC BY-SA 4.0

MAKE THE DECISION

07

What are you paying extra for?

Name the reason: a specific view, a location that saves an hour every day, a suite that keeps the family together, or staff who can solve problems. If the premium has no clear job, it is probably not the right spend.

Ask yourself: What changes about the trip if you choose this hotel instead of the next-best option?

A simple shortlist

Keep three options, but give each one a different job. Check the reasons that matter, then finish the sentence in your own words.

BEST FIT

Choose for: ☐ location ☐ room or view ☐ service style ☐ time on property

HOTEL / _____

IT FITS BECAUSE / _____

STRONGEST VALUE

Choose for: ☐ lower total ☐ breakfast or credit ☐ better room ☐ fewer tradeoffs

HOTEL / _____

IT IS THE VALUE BECAUSE / _____

SAFEST FALLBACK

Choose for: ☐ availability ☐ flexible cancellation ☐ dependable room ☐ simple logistics

HOTEL / _____

IT STILL WORKS BECAUSE / _____

A real bistecca alla fiorentina is a thick bone-in cut ordered by weight and served rare, so the restaurant fit matters before the plate arrives. Photo: Thomas Oboe Lee, CC BY-SA 4.0

WHEN YOU WANT A SECOND SET OF EYES

Tell me which Florence hotels you are considering.

I will ask the questions that hotel pages and star ratings do not answer. For most hotel-led trips, my planning is paid through the hotels and partners I book, not as an added planning fee from you.

You can also open a sample Carta trip hub and see how the hotel, restaurants, schedule, contacts, and personal notes fit together on the phone you are already carrying.

OPEN THE SAMPLE TRIP HUB
travelbycarta.com/aspen-paris-8f3k29q7

TELL ME WHERE YOU WANT TO GO
travelbycarta.com/contact

Gabe Rozavski · gabe@travelbycarta.com · (323) 854-1678