PROPOSAL + ITINERARY + INTERNAL FIXTURE

SEVEN-NIGHT CONCEPT · DATES TO CONFIRM

The British Virgin Islands

Prepared for Gabe Rozavski · two adults and one child

PREFERENCE-CONFLICT TEST: THE CLIENT EXPLICITLY SAID HE DID NOT WANT TO GO TO THE BVI. THIS ARTIFACT TESTS THE WORKFLOW ONLY AND MUST NOT BE TREATED AS CLIENT-ALIGNED.

NOT A LIVE QUOTE

INTERNAL TEST

A deliberate preference conflict.

This version substitutes the BVI into the same traveler profile even though the recorded client preference is not to go there.

Its purpose is to prove that the Carta proposal system can use a 100%-ready destination intelligence set without silently rewriting client intent. The destination content may be strong; the recommendation is still not client-aligned.

CRM truth preserved: the existing trip remains Tokyo. This BVI PDF is an operator-only fixture, not a new destination decision.

HARD GUARDRAIL

Do not send as a recommendation.

- Do not infer consent from the quality of this document.
- Do not change the trip destination or client stage.
- Do not quote or hold inventory.
- Require an explicit client override before live BVI work.

TEST

Commercial status

The profile stays true, even when the place changes.

3

Gabe, Rebecca, and one child. The child's age remains to confirm.

OCCASION

18th

Anniversary trip with genuine milestone weight.

RHYTHM

2–3

Meaningful activities per day, not an overfilled checklist.

What should still shape the trip

- High-end stay with a proper lobby, bar, restaurant, pool, and spa.
- Central-feeling base within the destination's own island logic.
- Quiet room; bed choice and two-bed occupancy must be confirmed.
- One beautiful romantic moment without making the child an afterthought.
- Strong food moments plus room to pause and reset.

What could ruin it

- Rough arrival or weak first impression.
- Broken air-conditioning or a noisy room.
- Shaky Wi-Fi when connectivity is needed.
- Too many transfers controlling the vacation.
- Presenting an unwanted destination as if it were agreed.

Primary dream request retained: a beautiful balcony or equivalent outdoor-view experience—subject to room category, child occupancy, and live availability.

Why the BVI could fit— and why that is not enough.

PROFILE MATCHES

The strongest theoretical fit

- Barefoot luxury with privacy and clear water.
- A paced day: one water anchor, long lunch, resort reset.
- Family-friendly soft adventure rather than nightlife.
- An anniversary dinner can feel intimate and place-specific.

PREFERENCE MISMATCH

The disqualifying fact

The client said he did not want the BVI.

No amount of destination readiness, hotel fit, or itinerary polish overrides that instruction. This page exists to make the contradiction impossible to miss.

VIRGIN GORDA

Best first-timer base

The Baths, quiet coves, North Sound access, and the strongest resort fit.

ANEGADA

Texture change

Low coral island, lobster, empty beaches, and more routing risk.

JOST VAN DYKE

Iconic ritual

Use as a boat-day stop, not the luxury anchor.

One polished anchor. Water days radiate from it.

INTERNAL TEST · NOT CLIENT-ALIGNED

Rosewood Little Dix Bay

The safest theoretical fit for a first BVI family stay.

It offers the hotel structure the profile asks for while keeping Virgin Gorda's beach and water access close. The primary room request would be a quiet category with a real outdoor-view experience and occupancy confirmed for two adults and one child.

WHY THIS BASE

- Full-service luxury rather than villa-only logistics.
- Strong anniversary setting.
- The Baths and North Sound are practical chapters.
- Resort reset time remains protected.

ALTERNATIVE 01

Oil Nut Bay

Better if villa control and North Sound access outrank a traditional hotel atmosphere.

ALTERNATIVE 02

Guana Island

Better if quiet privacy outranks variety, scene, and spontaneous movement.

AVOID BY DEFAULT

Nightly island moves

The profile's dislike of rough transitions makes excessive packing and ferry cutoffs a poor match.

Confirm live: dates, room category, child occupancy, balcony/outdoor space, rate, taxes, fees, transfers, inclusions, cancellation terms, and availability.

A resort-first week with selective movement.

ARRIVAL

Day 1 · Land softly

Gateway transfer to Virgin Gorda, quiet check-in, balcony or outdoor-view reset, easy resort dinner.

02

GRANITE + SEA

The Baths before the crowds

Early natural landmark, Devil's Bay, long lunch, full afternoon back at the resort.

03

SIGNATURE WATER DAY

North Sound by private boat

One beautiful sailing chapter, a marina lunch, swimming, and a protected return window.

04

NO-TRANSFER DAY

Resort rhythm + anniversary evening

Sleep late, beach and spa, then one polished dinner with the family structure confirmed.

05

OPTIONAL ICONIC LAYER

Jost Van Dyke, lightly

White Bay as a ritual, not a party mandate; skip if sea conditions or family rhythm say no.

06

FLEXIBLE CONTRAST

Savannah Bay or Anegada

Choose a quiet local beach day or weather-safe Anegada plan only after live routing review.

07

DECOMPRESSION

Keep the last day spacious

Pool, beach, one last meal, packing without rush, and departure logistics locked early.

A gentle arrival, then the first icon.

DAY 1 · ARRIVAL

The transfer is part of the trip.

BVI arrivals can involve a smaller flight, ferry, customs, baggage handoff, or private boat. The exact gateway remains to confirm. The planning standard is one protected route with a clear fallback—not a stack of optimistic connections.

- Meet-and-assist or private transfer where available.
- Room ready strategy and quiet-location request.
- No timed activity after arrival.
- Easy resort dinner and early night.

DAY 2 · EARLY START

The Baths + Devil’s Bay

Go early to reduce heat and peak-hour congestion. Treat the boulder trail and water access as the single anchor. Afterward, choose a relaxed lunch and return to the hotel before the day becomes a transfer exercise.

OPTIONAL	Spring Bay if conditions and energy are right.
PROTECT	A full resort reset before dinner.

PROFILE LOGIC

A strong first impression here is not a welcome drink. It is a transfer plan that actually works.

The water day, then the anniversary pause.

DAY 3

Private North Sound day

Build one full day around sailing, coves, swimming, and a lunch in the Oil Nut Bay, Bitter End, Saba Rock, or Prickly Pear orbit. Final routing belongs to the captain and sea conditions.

- Shade and hydration planned.
- Conservative water-safety brief.
- Return before the day becomes rushed.

DAY 4

A day with nowhere to be

Keep the family at the resort. Beach, pool, and spa can flex around energy. The anniversary moment should feel like a reward for slowing down, not another appointment.

Dinner brief: beautiful setting, reliable service, timing that works for the child, and a quiet table request. No restaurant is held in this fixture.

BOAT

Confirm live

Operator, vessel, child safety equipment, cancellation, and weather call.

SPA

Not reserved

Treatment menu, timing, and childcare remain unconfirmed.

DINNER

Not reserved

CocoMaya or resort dining are concepts, not bookings.

One optional icon. One quiet finish.

05

JOST VAN DYKE · OPTIONAL

White Bay without overbuilding the day

Treat Soggy Dollar and the Painkiller story as an iconic BVI ritual, not a hidden discovery. Keep it family-aware and pair it with quieter water time. Skip entirely if the sea state, transfer length, or mood does not support it.

06

CHOOSE ONE CONTRAST

Savannah Bay or Anegada

Savannah Bay is the lower-friction choice. Anegada offers empty-beach and lobster contrast but should be added only with a robust weather and routing plan. No rushed same-day promise.

07

DECOMPRESSION

The last full day belongs to the hotel

Sleep, pool, beach, a favorite lunch repeated if desired, and one final sunset. Pack before dinner. Lock departure logistics while the office is open.

BEST DEFAULT

Stay on Virgin Gorda

For this profile, fewer transitions beat the bragging rights of touching every island.

ONLY IF CONFIRMED

Anegada overnight

A strong contrast, but not worth introducing brittle timing into an anniversary week.

Decision rule: the itinerary should get simpler when the weather, family rhythm, or transportation confidence drops.

The BVI is sold in rituals and transfers.

Four food moments

LOCAL

Tortola breakfast

Johnny cake and local context, if gateway timing allows.

POLISHED

CocoMaya

Beachfront design and sunset energy on Virgin Gorda.

WATER

North Sound lunch

Choose the stop around the day's route, not a fixed fantasy.

ICONIC

Anegada lobster

Only if the routing deserves an overnight or safe return.

Operational non-negotiables

- Exact arrival gateway and final transfer cutoff.
- Child age, occupancy, room category, and bedding.
- Quiet-room and air-conditioning checks.
- Boat operator, safety gear, weather terms, and sea-state decision point.
- Ferry/private transfer backups and baggage handling.
- Connectivity expectations on boats and outer islands.
- Insurance and hurricane-season cancellation posture.

DRIVING

*Confirm individual villa, resort, and yacht systems before travel.

A complete test. Not a client recommendation.

RESEARCH

100% complete. BVI destination and component intelligence passed the Carta readiness gates.

ITINERARY

Suggested only. No activity, restaurant, transfer, or room is reserved.

PRICING

Not quoted. No live rates, taxes, fees, airfare, or totals are represented.

CLIENT FIT

Failed by explicit preference. The client said he did not want the BVI.

DECISION

Do not advance.

This artifact successfully tests the proposal-and-itinerary pipeline against a completed destination knowledge set. It does not create client consent.

If the BVI is ever reconsidered, the next step is an explicit preference override from Gabe—not inventory search.

CRM handling: preserve the existing Tokyo trip destination and stage. Store this BVI version as a separate internal test asset rather than replacing the aligned Tokyo proposal link.
